

Biodynamic Association Certification Manager

Salary: £29 - £32k depending on experience (a pension scheme is also available)

BDA Certification is unique among UK accredited Organic certification bodies in that we certify to both Organic and Demeter (Biodynamic) food and farming standards.

We are now looking for a bright, energetic, and ambitious person, who shares our passion for biodynamic and organic food and farming to manage our certification team as we move forward and grow the business post-Brexit.

Our successful candidate will be able to line manage a small team of office staff and self-employed inspectors, relish the detail of certification, have great attention for quality management and the ability to ensure that the principles that inspire our licensees inform all aspects of certification.

UK agriculture is at an historic turning point, and this role provides an excellent opportunity to be involved with other UK certification bodies, Defra and the wider sector of regenerative and sustainable food to develop a better future for us all.

We pride ourselves on being a small team who is committed to building personal, long-lasting relationships with our licensees alongside providing a professional and responsive certification service. At the heart of it all, we are inspired by the same biodynamic and organic principles that inspire our licensees. For more on biodynamic and Demeter, please consult our website www.bdcertification.org.uk/.
